Key Learnings

- Understanding about the high-speed nature of the digital enterprise and its requirements on IT
- Knowledge of the digital product lifecycle as defined by the ITIL® operating model
- Importance of the ITIL® guiding principles and other fundamental concepts for delivering high-speed IT
- Knowledge of the contribution of digital products to the added value

Two to four weeks before the course the participants receive the official book and further preparation materials. The seminar requires at least 20 hours of additional time outside the classroom.

The course consists of a three-day interactive course consisting of presentation and group exercises, followed by the exam in the afternoon of the last day of the course. Please keep the evenings free for repetitions and/or smaller homework. The preparation and processing of the homework will contribute significantly to the success of the exam.

Target audience

This module is aimed at IT and service management practitioners working in organizations that are becoming increasingly digital. It will help those familiar with traditional IT and service management concepts to confidently discuss «digital», develop practical skills and integrate new concepts, techniques and technologies into their way of working. The module is also aimed at IT managers and practitioners involved in digital services or working on digital transformation projects and/or working on high-speed environments. Specifically, these are:

- IT Manager
- Service Designer
- Release Managers
- Cloud Architects
- DevOps Engineer
- Software Developer
- Agile Coaches
